826 DIGITAL

WRITING

Tentacle Girl and Her Human (?) Discovery

by Evelyn DiRocco,
Grade 5, Andover, MA

TYPE

FANTASY/SCIFI

GENRE

GRADE 5

In the bustling city Brook, there's a fierce, brave, well-known superhero, Tentacle Girl. She fights crime in the city. With her tentacle arms that extend like a lasso, and her ink-squirting belly button, she's basically indestructible. However, a reckless villain who goes by the name Crush is a big challenge for Tentacle Girl. Some people think that he's too impossible for her to ever beat, but she keeps trying like her dead mother would've. Tentacle Girl is determined to continue with her mother's legacy. That's all the motivation she needs to keep herself going.

Tentacle Girl was just taking a casual walk in the park, letting the wind brush through her tentacle hair, while her tentacles dragged along the pavement, and her green body shined against the sun. Then she heard a horrifying BOOM! CRASH! SCREAM!

"Muah hahahaha!"

© 826 DIGITAL 2026

She knew that horrible evil laugh all too well. It could only be Crush!

Tentacle Girl stormed into the battle scene and let out a loud ear-piercing screech like she always does before and after a battle, and some ink came out of her belly button too. She quickly spotted Crush because of his bright green skin and giant muscles that made him stick out from the crowd. He had smashed the wall of a bank! People were screaming and running all over the place! She swung her arms at Crush and tied him up, but he managed to somehow break free. She also shot ink at him, but he didn't seem affected by it at all! Crush just wiped it off. He was about to smash another wall, when she used her final attack.

Tentacle Girl shook her hand a little bit. Three silver ninja stars appeared in her palm. She swung the ninja stars at him like a Frisbee. When the ninja stars hit Crush, his green skin ripped open a bit on his arm, as if it was cloth, revealing human-like skin underneath.

Tentacle Girl was in shock. She froze for a while. Could Crush really be a human? She thought to herself, starting to question everything that she used to think about him. When Crush noticed the rip, he gasped loudly, then quickly teleported somewhere unknown.

"Look, Tentacle Girl saved us!" a little boy shouted from the crowd as he pointed to her. Tentacle Girl smiled at him, then used her tentacles to swing her way through the calming sunset and home. At night, Tentacle Girl lay down on her bed in her cold, dark room. It was so quiet that the clock ticking was louder than everything else. She was trying to sleep, but she just couldn't stop thinking about Crush's human skin. He teleported so quickly, so he must've known about his skin. Tentacle Girl sighed. I guess I will never know. There are lots of things in life that she would never know. This would just need to be one of them. With that, she fluffed up her pillow and went to sleep.

© 826 DIGITAL 2026

This piece was originally published in No Ordinary Dreamer by 826 National.

© 826 DIGITAL 2026