

WRITING

Platonic Soulmate

by Yojannie Pizarro, Age
17, 826 Boston

TYPEPOETRY*GENRE*GRADES 11-12

I truly believe that opposites attract.

You being Dominican and me being Puerto Rican yet
we balance

each other perfectly.

Your favorite color being blue and mine being purple yet they both

make sense together.

My other half and forever friend.

Everyone always thinks I'm being dramatic when I tell them we are forever.

We are so alike and in sync that we are basically sisters.

How “weird” I am for feeling at home with you, when we hang out together.

I feel like we just make each other complete.

The way we both know exactly how the other feels without anyone having to say the words.

The way we both know someone said something hurtful is the way our energy shifts.

It’s like you’ve gone left when we planned on going right a day before.

And the way we protect each other is like we have something to lose if we don’t.

The type of love you have for me is the type of love you experience once in a lifetime.

Having someone care for you and love you unconditionally is unforgettable.

It feels like “Victoria” by Sonder, 2:22-2:54. My own personal Euphoria.

Me ayudas a descubrir mi problemas familiares, problemas de chicos, inseguridades como no es nada. Todas tus palabras y frases tienen significado. Parece que nunca me pongo mal contigo. Yo te amo más que la palabra amor en sí misma. Es tan reconfortante que exista alguien que es exactamente como tu.

Quien entiende tu humana, ríe como tu, escribe como tu, y ama como tu.

This poem was originally published in I Find a Place by 826 Boston.